Passageway Choked by Fatten Rock and Conl-Imprisoned Since the Forences of Monday.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 22.-With fallen rock and coal choking the passageway for some fifty feet between him and the men who have been laboring day and night since Monday morning to reach him, Ignatz Cosmos is imprisoned in the Gaylord Mine, at Plymouth, while on the surface of the ground, some 359 feet above him, his wife and four children, with many relatives and friends, anxiously await tidings from below.

Down in the passage that was closed by the heavy cave-in of Monday morning as many brave men as there is room for are working every minute of the twenty-four hours with the one hope of reaching Cosmos before he starves to death. They knew it would be impossible to remove the mass of fallen rock and coal in time to save Cosmes, so a speedler method has been adopted. The rescuers are boring through the mass and making a new, though small, passage to the spot where

Cosmos is held captive.

It is a dangerous undertaking, this of foreing a way along the old passage, for at any time the loosened and broken mass of rock and coal, by its chormous pressure, may break down the new opening or slide and crush it in upon the men who are

OSSIFYING IN A HOSPITAL BED. Strange Case of a Patient in a New

admitted to the hospital it was necessary to feed him through a pipe entering the stomach. He has a happy disposition, and for that reason, as much as for any other. ster caught by Capt. John A. Smith in the er, formerly chief engineer on the staff of Atlantic Ocean of Patchogue, has been the supervisor of the harbor of New York, on exhibition. There was a great rush of ever admitted to St. Luke's Hospital. He he has become a favorite with everybody curious ones to see the monster. has been a patient in that institution for in the hospital. He is philosophical, and has been a patient in that institution for two years, and during that period he has become almost completely ossified. Mr. Bloomer has the use of his fingers, and can turn his head slightly from one side a cure, and the only thing that can be done can turn his head slightly from one side can turn his head slightly from one saw of the pillow to the other. Otherwise be is entirely helpless. He has computed the time required for ossification, and expects to die about January 1 next.

Mr. Bloomer walked into St. Luke's Hos-wares are and may been an object of interest to many medical men. I have watched the spread pital one afternoon two years ago and announced that he was suffering from rheumatism. He said that his work in New York Harbor had kept him out in all kinds of weather, and that he had con tracted the disease, which had resulted in swollen knee joints and severe pain. He walked with the aid of a cane, but had to be assisted upstairs to a ward in the hospital. He told the physicians who examined him that his skin had begun to change color, and was becoming dark brown in spots. The physicians who examined him decided that they had a case of rheumatoid arthritis to contend with. Since his admission to the institution Mr. Bloomer has been the principal object of interest in the hospital. His case is rare, and the gradual spread of the disease has been watened with great interest by the attending phy-sicians. Many physicians from other cities who have beard of the case have visited this city for the express purpose of personally investigating the case, and it has been made a subject for deep study on the part of all the physicians who have noted it. Mr. Bloomer has suffered excruciating pain, which he has borne with wonderful pain, which he has order with women to fortitude. His bed in the private room which he occupies is surrounded with pretty articles, with birds, flowers, and stuffed cats and other animals, which have been given to him by the physicians and nurses, to make his surroundings as pleasant as possible.

Mr. Miller, who assists Dr. Englehardt, the house physician, described Mr. Bloomers' case yesterday afternoon. He said that the patient was suffering from rheumatoid arthritis, the loss of the use of the bones and joints of the body, and a gradual stiffening of the body and the turning of the bone matter to a clay-like substance. He said that such cases were true but that he had seen one or the best of the body. substance. He said that such cases were rare, but that he had seen one or two before his attention was directed to that of Mr. Bloomer. He said that when the patient entered the hospital the stiffering was noticeable only in the toes and fingers, but that gradually it had extended until the spinal column, the neck and the legs had become ossified and without feeling.

"The man is as stiff as though made of stone or clay, and he has to be lifted as

Howard Ellis, in his address, said:
"The question is whether faith applied to the practice of healing may defy the law, and say that no combination such as this can be permitted to evade the operation of the law which provides a punishment for persons who, without proper authorization, presume to practice the art of healing. Public prosecutors may temporize and judges may have their doubts, but the law must take cognizance of the horrible practices of so-called Christian Scientists when they result in the deaths of patients. The meeting of the Christian Scientists at the Grand Opera House was held Howard Ellis, in his address, said: entists at the Grand Opera House was held for the express purpose of defying the law, and the law should accept the challenge
